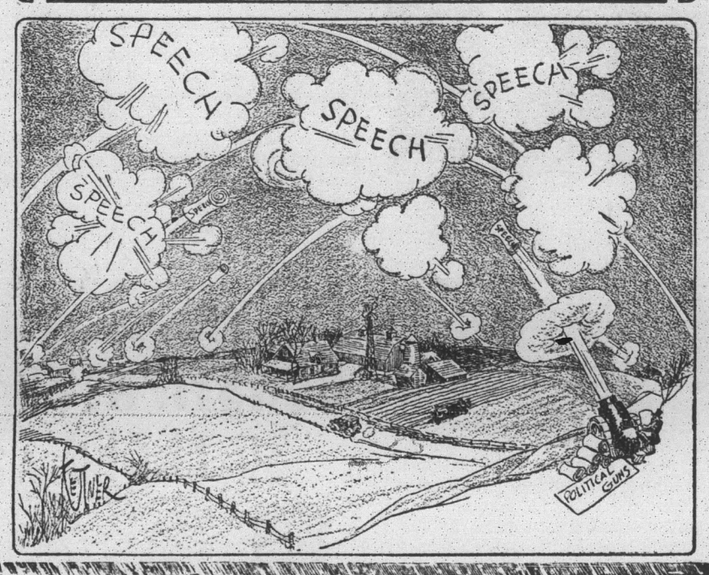
The Battle Is On



KIWANIANS TOLD HOW MONEY IS MADE

Herb Mohan, principal of junior boys at San Diego Army & Navy academy, was chairman of the program at Wednesday Kiwanis luncheon, with Mr. Reader of the U.S. Bureau of Printing and Engraving as guest speaker.

Mr. Reader has been with this department since 1902 and very well qualified to speak on the activities of his branch of the service. He is in charge of the exhibit at the Exposition and has spent many years out of Washington in exhibits of this nature over the United States as well as at expositions in foreign countries.

The speaker said, the making of paper was known as far back as 105 B. C., by the Chinese who also issued paper money as early as 1367, printing same from movable type, which was 100 years before Gottenburg made this commodity. He said, the sayings "not worth his salt," "not worth a rap" and "not worth a Continental" are all taken from the period of time when people were paid in salt, or money was called a rap or Continental, and that even "wildcat" schemes are taken from money gotten out by early Michigan banks that soon proved worthless. The speaker's talk was highly interesting with much historical and statistical data.

Major Atkinson of the academy and Cadet Lieut. John Lyons and Cadet Bill Heave were guests with the boys giving a saxophone solo and piano solo.

Ed Hudson of Rosecroft Begonia Gardens was a guest of Jake Watson.

LOCAL CITIZEN DEFENDS F.D.R.

(From San Diego Sun)

Editor, The Sun: I wish to say a word in regard to fair play in politics—the prettiest study outside the Bible. Yet man in his greed for political power and money has degraded the name until it has now become a stigma.

I have always loved the name of democracy and have tried to help build a better country, town and city. I think my record in Kentucky, Oklahoma and California is clean. I helped put in office here in San Diego, Mayor Benbough, Sheriff Dort, Representative George Burnham and other Republicans, of which I am proud.

Now here comes what I want to say—why, after all our good President F. D. Roosevelt has done for us and generations to come, a man who took us out of the quagmire of chaos, misery and want in so short a time and set in motion the wheels of progress that should have been done long ago, should we as good Americans, irrespective of political affiliation, be so mean as to besmear his good name as some are trying to do. As Will Rogers said, if he (President Roosevelt), were to speak on the Lord's Prayer he would be criticized.

For cleaner politics.—B. B. WRIGHT.

Edythe F. Kenline New Women's Club President

New officers for the ensuing fiscal year were elected Thursday of last week by the Ocean Beach Women's club, Mary C. Lee, retiring president, presiding.

The new officials will be: Mrs. Edythe F. Kenline, president; Mrs. Naomi Dick, 1st vice president; Maude Schumacher, 2nd vice president; Coranna Burnett, corresponding secretary; Lillian Kearney, recording secretary; Mary Varney, treasurer; Blanche Wenrich, auditor; Ada Harris, historian and Mary C. Lee, parliamentarian. Installation will be held in June.

A business meeting was conducted besides the selection of officers and Mrs. Bartlett told of the WPA library project wherein magazines and newspapers were being gathered, continued stories clipped and pasted for distribution to children's homes and other public institutions.

The girls scouts, under the direction of Mrs. Don Anderson, presented the club with a new flag and the old one was burned with appropriate ceremonies.

POINT LOMA O. E. S. NOTES

Point Loma chapter No. 490 O.E.S. will meet in regular session Monday night, April 20, at 8 p. m. Four candidates will receive the degrees of the order and all members of the Eastern Star are cordially invited to be present to witness the beautiful ceremony of initiation.

Hazel Lathrop will be chairman of the evening, assisted by Pearl Bryan and Mary Louise Landan.

A dinner, sponsored by Point Loma chapter O.E.S. will be served to the public, April 29, at the Woman's clubhouse. The public is invited.

EIGHTIETH BIRTHDAY CELEBRATED ON TWO CONTINENTS AND ENGLAND

A. J. Allen of 4871 Newport avenue last night at the San Diego hotel celebrated his brother's eightieth birth day, honoring Fred Allen, Esq., who resides at Bridgend, South Wales England. His birthday was also celebrated by his son, Bert Allen, of Melbourne, Australia and his sister, Mrs. Louisa Lake, of Brisbane, Australia and many cities in South Wales. Mr. Allen has had a very wide experience, as he has traveled continuously for over fifty years. He was a director of one of the largest wholesale houses of Manchester, England. His personal acquaintances could be numbered by the hundreds. A. J. Allen's guests for the occasion were Judge Arthur L. Mundo of the Supreme Court; Ernest W. Dort, sheriff of San Diego county; H. K. Rankin, postoffice supervisor of the office at Ocean Beach; R. H. Gunnis, general manager of the First National Bank building; H. H. Hartvigsen, editor of The Ocean Beach News and Eric H. Droper, representing Thos. Cooke & Sons, Wagon-Lits, Inc.

Half Dozen New Homes Started This Week

O. F. Herreman, owner of the meat department at the Market Basket next door to the post office, this week had construction started on a five-room Cape Cod house at 4627 Niagara avenue.

Mr. Herreman believes it as cheap and much more satisfactory, to live in one's own home, therefore he was not long in coming to the decision to build after he had decided to locate here.

James T. Morris, who purchased a lot at 4430 Newport avenue a few weeks ago, has received the building permit for his new home and awarded the contract for construction to P. M. Burrows of Ocean Beach. Jim's permit calls for a frame-stucco residence and garage to cost a little more than $3,000.

Another $3,000 home was started on Brighton avenue this week, a residence and garage of frame-stucco material going up for Harold Laticke at 4978 Brighton.

On the other side of the hill at 635 Rosecrans street Frank W. Sloan this week started building a $7,000 frame-stucco residence and garage.

Well informed authorities are of the opinion that Point Loma peninsula will add more than 200 new homes during the year of 1936.

To Discuss Problems of Organized Labor

"The Problems of Organized Labor" will be discussed by A. C. Rogers, labor leader, at the regular Tuesday night session of the social-civic forum, beginning at 7:30 and held at the Ocean Beach elementary school.

Mr. Rogers was formerly secretary of the local San Diego American Federation of Labor, and has been prominently identified with the labor movement in San Diego for some years past. He is an able speaker and will be heard with interest on a subject very close to his long experience.

The Ocean Beach social-civic forum is one of several to be conducted in San Diego under the department of education, in the supervision of Paul Klein and Dr. Charles J. Falk, directors, with John R. Lyons, chairman of the local group.

The attendance at the forum sessions has grown slowly and the public is reminded that sessions are held each Tuesday night, and there are no fees or charges of any kind.

100th Member Installed By Local Masons

Last night was a banner event for Point Loma Masonic lodge No. 620 F. & A. M., when they raised J. M. McHulty in the third degree, making their 100th member since the lodge was instituted in 1925. The Scottish Rite quartette gave several much appreciated selections and the whole evening was an enjoyable event to members and visitors.

The lodge was granted a charter on October 25, 1925, with the following Masters, up to the present time: 1926, Franklin A. Plank; 1927, Donald J. Spencer; 1928, Fred J. Reid; 1929, Turner B. Kline; 1930, George W. MacBride; 1931, William E. Nelson; 1932, Milton Schactebeck; 1933, David R. Cobb; 1934, William E. Nelson; 1935, Ralph D. Lathrop; 1936, LeRoy W. Lee.

METHODIST CHURCH BOARD APPRECIATE FINANCIAL AID

The official board of the Methodist church of Ocean Beach wishes to express its deep appreciation to its friends in the community who came to its financial aid during the recent campaign for the re-financing of the building. The amount raised surpassed the highest expectations of the committee. Enough money was procured to properly re-finance the church property and balance the budget for this conference year. The church appreciates the fine response of the constituents in the community.

On With Roosevelt Club Chartered Here

A very enthusiastic meeting of more than 100 Roosevelt supporters, gathered at the Woman's clubhouse in Ocean Beach, Wednesday evening at which time a local club was formed and P. J. Paxton, secretary of the San Diego county "On With Roosevelt" headquarters presented to A. R. Fling, president, a charter for the Ocean Beach club.

This was strictly an organization meeting and no speaker had been engaged for the evening, however, very good talks were made by George White, Bob Quinn and others interested in the movement. President Fling told his co-workers that they must convince the lukewarm citizen of the benefits of the Roosevelt program and keep Democratic friends enthusiastic in their work.

The sincerity of President Roosevelt is fully realized by his local followers who hold steadfast to the fact that the president is willing and anxious to make improvement for the benefit of all our citizens, especially the workers, and that his suggestion in his radio talk this week for the limiting of jobs to those over 18 and under 65 is a definite move in the right direction. When we look back to conditions of his inauguration and the few months following, we know that "we have come a long way" and that brighter times are ahead if we continue President Roosevelt at the head of our government.

Wm. H. Hood Buys Stevenson Court.

Jay Coleman of The May Co., this week reports the sale of the Stevenson court, corner Cable and Long Branch avenue, to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Hood of Seaside and Green street.

The Hoods will put this court property into first class rental condition by renovating and redecorating as fast as this can be done without inconvience to the present tenants.

We are told this is the third piece of property Mr. and Mrs. Hood have purchased since coming to Ocean Beach several years ago from Iowa.

CHERRY BLOSSOM BRIDGE TO BE GALA AFFAIR

Ocean Beach PTA annual event Friday, April 17th at 8 p. m. in the lounge of Ocean Village hotel is capturing the interest of local citizens. Cherry blossom decorations, cunning colored paper spring bonnets fashioned into tally cards, twelve door prizes and clever table prizes have enlisted the following reservations:

Christian Science Lecture High School April 24

The people of San Diego and vicinity will have the privilege of hearing a lecture on Christian Science entitled: "Christian Science Brings Enlightenment For Mankind" under the auspices of Sixth Church of Christ, Scientist, San Diego, to be held in Point Loma high school auditorium, Friday evening, April 24th at 8 o'clock. The lecturer will be Miss Margaret Morrison, C.S. of Chicago, Illinois, member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ Scientist, Boston, Mass. There will be bus service from the Ocean Beach junction before and after the lecture.

Chamber Commerce Transacts Business

Directors of Ocean Beach chamber of commerce met in regular session Monday evening.

In the communications considered was a letter from Senator Ed Fletcher under date of April 3, stating he had discovered thru correspondence with Congressman Burnham and Senator McAdoo that the Mission Bay park projects which he believed to be in Washington were still being held in San Francisco, this information going to Burnham in wire from McLaughlin which said: "Rec your telegram of 30th Mission Bay project held state of ice pending necessity for additional projects to employ available relief labor in vicinity." Fletcher states, however, that he believes McLaughlin handling matter in satisfactory way awaiting future appropriations from the government.

A copy of a letter by Arthur Hubbard written to the San Diego City Council, the Health department and the Ocean Beach chamber of commerce, was read, referring to the city's habit of dumping trash from their street sweeper and then taking a week or more to pick up said sweeping with their truck. The procedure at Ocean Beach could be improved upon without a doubt and the chamber of commerce endorsed Hubbard's stand, they also directed the secretary to write the city manager asking that the sweepings be carted from the streets the day following the dumping.

Representatives of the Santa Fe Transportation company were presented and again asked this body to endorse a resolution to the State Railroad Commission favoring the request of the Santa Fe in their application to operate passenger bus lines as a local carrier from San Diego to Los Angeles. A similar resolution was tabled several months ago but at Monday night's meeting received the endorsement of the local chamber.

A request will be made of the director of public works that an electric light be installed in front of the rest rooms at the foot of Niagara avenue.

The secretary was also instructed to write the San Diego chamber of commerce, wth a copy to the County Supervisors, requesting that a San Diego sign be placed on the east-west highway in Arizona, directing traffic over a 50 mile shorter route to the coast, Lordsburg to Benson. Information having come to local residents several times that travelers were being directed farther north and no signs there designating the way to San Diego.

NEW TELEPHONE DIRECTORY GOING TO PRESS APRIL 27

A call for local subscribers to check their listings in the telephone book was issued today by C. F. Joos, manager of the Southern California Telephone Company. He announced that the next San Diego city and county telephone directory will go to press April 27.

All revisions of existing listings will be included in the new 1936 issue if received at the local telephone business office on or before April 27. Listings of new telephones installed by that date will also appear in the new directories which will be delivered to subscribers in San Diego county exchanges about June 1.

Ocean Beach Grammar School News

TOY TOWN

The high second graders have completed their toy town of Ocean Beach. They have made houses, shops, a street car, trucks, tree, fire station and many interesting things that make up a town besides drawing pictures and telling stories. The town will be on display during Public school week. Parent and friends are invited to visit room 3.

ATHLETIC CAPTAINS

New team captains have been chosen this week. The new boys' captains are Bob Wagner and Bob Decker on team 1; Tom Padgitt and John Glithero on team 2; Jack Powers and John Welch on team 3; and Wayne Bailey and Earl Purdy on team 4.

The new girls' captains are Macine Kvach and May Kieber on team 1; Jane Richley and Carmen Price on team 2; Betty Dewhurst and Janet Glithero on team 3.

MINIATURE HARBOR

Mrs. Karl's L2 and H1 children have completed construction of a model of San Diego with a background typical of the city of Mount Helix and San Miguel with the airplane beacon.

Every type of boat studied is shown from the favorite little tug to the big ocean liner, Normandie. The construction will be on display in room 4 until and during Public school week.

SCHOOL FLOWER SHOW

One of the features of the Nature day to be held Friday, May 1 in the afternoon is the Flower Show which is being planned by the pupils of Mrs. Moon's room and a student committee from the upper grades. The regulations adopted by the committee divides the exhibits into two types, individual entries and room exhibits. Classes under individual entries are: Class 1, potted plants; class 2 (a), bowl of spring flowers and (b) bowl of perennial flowers; class 3, bud vase; class 4, flower boxes; class 5, cactus; class 6. ornaments made of flowers; and class 7 vegetables.

Members of the student committee in charge of arrangements for the flower show are: Mildred Lee H6, chairman; Luella Brown H6, Charlotte Oberholser H6, Anna Belle Back L6, Amy Lou Temple H6, Jane Rishley H5, Betty Jane Dewhurst H5, Trina Baker H5, Frances Walsh L5, Jolyn Winans H4, Wilberta Jarrard H4, Anita Howarth H4, Douglas McCullough L4, Patsy Coakley L4, Donald Mac Beth H3.

EXPOSITION PET SHOW

Many Ocean Beach school pupils have already secured entry blanks for the Exposition pet show which will be held Saturday, April 25. The schools of San Diego are serving as the clearing house for entry blanks and distribution of numbers which must be presented when entering the north gate. Several rules are stressed by Exposition officials which are: (1) Dogs must wear both current license and rabies tags, and be securely fastened on leash to a collar or harness tight enough so the dog will not slip out, and (2) small pets, cats, rabbits, poultry, pigeons, birds, turtles, fish, etc., must be in boxes or cages where they can be easily seen without removing them. No pets are allowed to be carried in children's arms. Parents and friends are encouraged to superintend groups of children. They will be admitted free along with the child at the north gate (between the Indian Village and the Roosevelt Junior High school).

TOWNSENDITES ATTENTION!

Don't forget your social night, Monday evening, April 20th, 7:30, corner Abbott and Newport Sts. Judge George Irving, speaker. Music and refreshments. Everyone is welcome. Come and hear the truth.

Hitler's Peace Proposals Scouted by France--Big Italian Victory May End Ethiopian War—Lowden for Republican Key-Noter.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© Western Newspaper Union.

ADOLF HITLER'S proposals for peace in Europe, together with his flat rejection of the plan of the other four Locarno powers for settlement of the Rhineland situation, were handed to British Foreign Minister Eden by Joachim von Ribbentrop, and passed on by Eden to the French and Belgian ambassadors in London. The British cabinet thought the German scheme worthy of consideration, but the French government looked upon it as a "cunning plan" to split the Locarno powers and make Hitler the virtual dictator of Europe. Premier Sarraut and Foreign Minister Flandin were consulting on steps for frustrating the reichsfuehrer and preserving a united front of the Locarno nations.

Adolf Hitler

Hitler's note made these proposals:

1. A "standstill" agreement to exist on both sides of the German border for four months during which Germany, France, and Belgium would make no troop movements. This "armistice" would be guaranteed by a neutral commission.

2. A 25-year nonaggression pact between Germany, France, and Belgium, guaranteed by an international arbitration court, to be negotiated immediately after the French elections.

3. Negotiation for nonaggression pacts between Germany and her other neighbors.

4. Germany to return to the League of Nations as an equal if the league covenant is separated from the Versailles treaty and with the understanding that colonial concessions will be made.

5. When a general settlement is in sight conferences to be held to secure the prohibition in warfare of gas, poison and incendiary bombs, bombing of civilians, bombing of towns more than 12 miles from the battle zone, and the abolition of heavy tanks and heavy artillery.

6. A general economic and disarmament conference.

FOLLOWING the example of Germany, the Austrian diet has repudiated that nation's military obligations under the St. Germain treaty. By unanimous vote it approved a bill introduced by Chancellor Kurt von Schuschnigg, providing for general national military service "with or without arms." Every male from his eighteenth to his forty-second year is liable to conscription. This move, which has the support of Premier Mussolini of Italy, was not unexpected, and though it aroused the little entente nations to anger, probably their formal protests will bring no result.

The new law is not likely to bring any great change at present in Austrian armaments, for Austria already had disregarded both the treaty of St. Germain's disarmament provision and its restriction of armaments without serious objection from other countries. Tanks, forbidden to Austria under the treaty, were actually paraded around the Ringstrasse some months ago under the eyes of foreign military attaches whom she had invited.

Hungary may now be expected to violate the treaties and rearm, that, too, being a part of Mussolini's policy.

PEACE negotiations between Italy and Ethiopia, outside the League of Nations, seem imminent, for emissaries of Emperor Haile Selassie already have been received by Marshal Pietro Badoglio, and the Italian undersecretary of colonies is in east Africa to conduct the preliminaries. This news followed closely the dispatches telling of a great victory won by Badoglio's northern troops over 20,000 fresh and picked Ethiopian soldiers whose fight was directed and watched by the emperor himself. The battle, at Mai Ceu, lasted all day and the Ethiopians left 7,000 dead on the field as they fled to join the main body of 50,000 troops south of Lake Ashangi eight miles away. Italian fatalities included 16 officers and about 1,000 soldiers, most of the latter being Eritrean Askaris. It was believed Marshal Badoglio would follow up this victory with a smashing blow at Dessye, main concentration point of the Ethiopians, unless peace negotiations stop him.

Marshal Badoglio

Just before this battle the Italian air bombers attacked and practically ruined Harar, second city of Ethiopia. Most of the populace had fled when scouting planes gave a warning of what was to come, so the casualties were few.

GERMANY'S men and women to the number of 44,389,140 declared by their votes in the reichstag elections that they supported the policies of Hitler. Only 542,898 had the nerve to vote against the reichsfuehrer, and a still smaller fraction refused to go to the polls.

Hitler's victory was thus extraordinarily complete, and the Nazis celebrated it with wild rejoicings in Berlin and other cities. It was the culmination of a three years' campaign in which the leaders sought to persuade the population of the reich that only Hitler could save the country from great danger.

WHILE a house committee is delving into the financial operations of the Townsend plan organization, its founder, Dr. Francis E. Townsend, announced in Washington a complete reorganization of "Old Age Revolving Pensions, Ltd." The shake-up followed a split between Representative John S. McGroarty of California, who has pushed the Townsend plan in the house, and the California doctor. Doctor Townsend accused McGroarty of conniving to convert Townsendites in California to the Democratic party.

Townsend said that henceforth the movement would be managed by a board and that he would present to it 90 per cent of the profits of the Townsend National Weekly. The national headquarters of the movement will be moved from Washington to Chicago, which was chosen for its central location and accessibility.

Another new policy of the movement will be the selection of an auditing firm to regularly audit finances and report to the directors of each of the Townsend clubs.

Townsend will remain as president. His board of directors was named as follows: Gomer Smith, Oklahoma City, vice president; Gilmour Young, San Francisco, national secretary; Dr. Clinton Wunder, New York, J. B. Kiefer, Chicago, Frank Arbuckle, Los Angeles, and Nathan J. Roberts, Jacksonville, regional directors; and Alfred Wright, Cleveland, Ohio, manager.

LEADERS of both major parties are perfecting the arrangements for the national conventions and picking out the chief orators for those occasions. The Republicans have tentatively selected Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, as temporary chairman and keynoter of the gathering in Cleveland. If this choice stands it is presumed the permanent chairman will be an Easterner, possibly Walter Edge of New Jersey, former ambassador and senator.

F. O. Lowden

Some Western governor is wanted by the Democrats as their keynoter and the honor may be given to Paul V. McNutt of Indiana, C. Ben Ross of Idaho or Clyde C. Herring of Iowa. For permanent chairman at Philadelphia Senator Robinson of Arkansas is likely to be picked. The speech putting President Roosevelt in nomination for a second term may be delivered by Senator Wagner of New York.

New York Republicans of the Old Guard persuasion scored a decisive victory over Senator Borah in the primaries, and the Empire state delegation to Cleveland will be unpledged to any candidate. The triumph of the conservatives was complete. Not only were the Borah candidates defeated in nine congressional districts in which they made contests, but the organization candidates for delegates defeated independent candidates not pledged to Borah in three other districts.

Maine Democrats in their primary pledged their ten convention votes to the renomination of Mr. Roosevelt.

The Kentucky state Republican convention instructed the four state delegates at large to vote for Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas for the Presidential nomination. This, with previous developments, assured Landon of 18 of the state's votes.

WILLIAM N. M'NAIR, the Democratic mayor of Pittsburgh, appeared as a witness before the house ways and means committee and was almost thrown out on his ear.

Unable to halt McNair's biting tirade against wasteful spending on the one hand and the proposed new punitive tax on corporation earnings on the other, Chairman Robert L. Doughton threatened to call a policeman bodily to evict the mayor.

"Why all this dignity?" shouted McNair. "Good night!"

A committee clerk brought a policeman to the front of the room as the congressmen quickly passed a motion to excuse the witness. McNair said he would leave "gladly" and departed.

UNABLE to raise $3,200,000 to redeem two bond issues reaching maturity, the province of Alberta, Canada, defaulted. Premier William Aberhart, leader of the Social Credit party, admitted he could not get the necessary funds. In last fall's election the Social Credit party won a big victory. One of the planks in its platform advocated the payment of $25 of social credit "dividends" monthly to every citizen. None of these dividends has been forthcoming as yet.

CITATIONS were issued by the Post Office department against alleged lottery associations operated by Mrs. Oliver Harriman, prominent in New York society, and Alfred E. Smith, Jr., son of Al Smith. They and others associated with them were summoned to appear in Washington and show cause why fraud orders should not be issued against them.

According to the charge, both persons are operating lotteries. Mrs. Harriman heads the "National Conference on Legalizing Lotteries, Inc.," and Smith heads the "Golden Stakes Sweepstakes."

DESPITE vigorous opposition, which will reappear on the floor of the senate, the senate committee on immigration and naturalization reported favorably the Kerr-Coolidge alien deportation bill, which Secretary Perkins has been trying to get through congress for three years. It will give her and two other members of an interdepartmental board discretionary power to harbor radical and even criminal aliens otherwise deportable in this country. The same bill recently was reported favorably by the house committee.

Secretary Perkins

Pending action by congress on the measure, Secretary Perkins has been holding up the deportation of some 2,800 aliens mandatorily deportable under existing law, contending that they are "hardship cases." Some are radicals, some have criminal records, and others entered the country illegally. By "hardship cases" Secretary Perkins means that they would be separated from family ties or put to some other inconvenience.

ACCORDING to the committee on government competition with private enterprise, whose report has been made to the President, that practice is wholly destructive except in situations where the public welfare can only thus be served. "The government's function," the report said, "is to protect economic activities of its citizens and not to supplant them."

The committee unanimously agreed that only under the following conditions is the government justified in entering into competition with private enterprise:

1. When required to assure adequate preparation for, and creation of, the facilities for national defense.

2. For the conservation of natural resources.

3. When private enterprise fails to conduct needed scientific research and exploratory activities to advance industrial development, or in the interest of public health and safety.

4. When private enterprise fails to render a service necessary for the general welfare.

FORMATION of a third national party was suggested in a resolution adopted by the Farmer-Labor party convention at St. Paul, Minn., and the delegates noisily welcomed the hint that Gov. Floyd B. Olson of Minnesota might be its Presidential candidate in 1940. Just now Mr. Olson is after a seat in the senate. The resolution was adopted by a vote of 368½ to 250½ although several leaders pleaded that the move be put off for four years.

Governor Olson said privately that in his opinion the resolution could do no harm since it does not commit the liberals to putting a national ticket in the field this year.

THOUGH Koki Hirota, the new Japanese premier, said a few days ago that while he was in office there would be no war, it is evident his government really is looking for serious trouble with Russia. This feeling is expressed by Eiji Amau, spokesman for the Tokyo foreign office, who said: "Japan must prepare for Soviet aggression."

Eiji Amau

Recent activities indicate the Reds are availing themselves of the critical situation which developed after the recent military revolt in Tokyo and are increasing the strength of their troops along the Manchukuan border.

Amau said the "recent Soviet policy has been to fire on any persons near the border." He said he regards this as rather strange behavior on the part of a "friendly neighbor." He said Premier Hirota had protested the alleged action to K. K. Yurenev, Russian ambassador to Japan.

The tension was increased when Moscow learned there had been heavy fighting in Outer Mongolia, ally of Russia, where Japanese and Manchukuan troops had crossed the border. B. S. Stomaniakov, Soviet vice-commissar for foreign affairs, told Japanese Ambassador Tamekichi Ota that the situation did not permit "waiting pacifically for development of events."

He declared "serious responsibility" would fall on the shoulders of the Japanese government if the fighting in Outer Mongolia were allowed to continue.

At the same time the Manchukuo government issued a warning that unless the Outer Mongolian government "takes immediate steps to terminate all kinds of provocations against Manchukuo's frontiers, the relations of the two countries are threatened with the most serious contingency."

Hachiro Arita, who became foreign minister of Japan, said he did not think the border incidents would break up relations but a recurrence would be dangerous.

USEFUL BEES

How an Expert Handles Bees.

Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

THERE are some 800,000 bees in the United States, producing about 100,000 tons of marketable honey annually. And yet the bee is not a native.

There were no bees in North America when the Spanish explorers arrived. Settlers coming in later expeditions brought them, and at first the Indians called them the "white man's fly." Since then they have followed man in his migration and settlement of every part of the United States and Canada.

Until recently these insects' chief usefulness to man was their production of honey and beeswax—no mean service, since for centuries honey was virtually the only available sweet. But now, as pollinating agents, they perform a far more important duty.

In the pioneer stages of American agriculture, bumblebees and other native pollinating insects that fed upon nectar and pollen were plentiful everywhere. But the planting of vast areas which once were forests, prairies, and swamps with fields of grain, orchards, and gardens upset the delicate balance of nature.

Widespread cultivation of single plants in huge acreages brought about an abnormal condition of insect population. Injurious species, afforded an enormous food supply, prospered and multiplied until now serious insect pests menace almost every important crop.

Insecticides must be used to protect farm crops, particularly fruits. Unfortunately, these materials kill not only harmful but beneficial insects. The toll includes honeybees and other wild bees, as well as the efficient bumblebees—all the insects that carry pollen from one blossom to another.

Plants Need Pollination.

Even yet we scarcely realize the dependence of many plants upon insects to effect pollination. The cutting of wood lots and the clean cultivation of our fields have added to the difficulty of survival of our useful insects, with the result that more and more dependence has to be placed upon the honeybee, the only pollinating insect that can be propagated and controlled.

Some plants bear only male flowers, which produce pollen but no fruit, and female flowers in the same species occur on a separate plant. To set fruit, pollen from the male plant must be carried to the female flower.

Some plants simultaneously bear both male and female flowers, but still require cross-pollination to set fruit. Then there is a third class in which both sexes occur in the same blossom. Some of these plants can set fruit with their own pollen. But in many plants pollen from another is necessary to set a full crop of fruit or seed.

Although the honeybee is by no means domesticated, it is easily controlled. Consequently, millions already are being moved from one section of the country to another and placed in orchards and on farms. Bee men in the South even offer for sale a pollination package, a wire cage filled with bees.

The grower distributes the requsite number throughout his orchards, opens the cages, and leaves the rest to the bees. Hundreds of full colonies are rented to orchardists during the peak of the blooming period. The bee has also largely replaced the camel's hair brush in pollinating cucumbers under glass.

Were it not for the work of the honeybee, most of our apple, pear, plum, and cherry orchards would bear poor crops, the growing of certain forage crops would be unprofitable, and the variety and quantity of our vegetables would be materially reduced.

Found in Nearly All Countries.

Honey and beeswax are produced over a wider geographical range than any other agricultural crop. There is scarcely a country in which honeybees are not kept. They inhabit the Tropic and Temperate zones, they are found in the deserts, on the mountains, in the plains, and in swamps, and as far north as Alaska.

Scattered over the world are several distinct races, such as the Italian, Carniolan, Caucasian, and Cyprian. All races, everywhere, react in almost the same manner. A skillful beekeeper can succeed in Australia as well as in Ohio, provided he keeps an eye to the weather and studies the local flora.

If honeybees are properly handled, there is no more danger in caring for them than in raising chickens. However, the belief that bees learn to know their master and will not sting him is without foundation.

During the active season the average life of a bee is six weeks. The first two weeks are lived almost exclusively within the hive, but thereafter the bees pass most of the daylight hours in the fields when the weather is good, in search of pollen and nectar. Since the beekeeper rarely opens the hive more than once a week, there is little opportunity for the bees to become acquainted with their owner.

Some persons are so constituted that one sting may prove highly dangerous to them and require immediate medical attention, but these cases are rare.

During the active season, a normal colony contains one queen, a fully developed female; thousands of unreproductive worker bees, which are females only partly developed; and several hundred drones, or male bees. The queen is endowed with great powers of reproduction, since she can even produce male progeny without mating, but she cannot produce female bees, workers or queens, without going through the marriage ceremony. Thus, the maligned drone is indispensable to the completion of the immortal cycle of the honeybee.

Queen's Wedding Flight.

Upon the wedding flight of the queen depends the subsequent development of the colony. On a bright spring day the virgin queen emerges from the hive and soars away to seek a mate from among the hundreds of drones cruising about in the warm sunshine. Blissfully, perhaps, the drone is seeking an encounter that will cost him his life, but insure the perpetuation of his race.

A moment after mating the drone dies and the newly mated queen at once becomes a widow. But this one mating enables the queen for the rest of her life, three or four years, to perform her maternal duties.

A few days after returning to the hive, she begins egg laying, slowly at first; but at the height of her career she may lay as many as 1,500 eggs a day and maintain this rate for days at a time.

She lays two kinds of eggs. One kind is unfertilized and hatches into a drone, or male bee. Mating has no influence upon this part of her family. Her sons are not the sons of her mate or husband, and are consequently fatherless, but they can claim a grandfather.

The other type of egg is fertilized by the queen with a male cell, of which she retains an almost unlimited number in a special organ of her body. The fertilized egg hatches into a female bee, usually a worker.

Thus both workers, or neuter bees, and queens come from the same kind of egg. Yet the two show marked differences. The queen has the function of reproduction; the worker bee has not. The queen bee possesses teeth on her mandibles, or jaws; the worker bee has smooth jaws. The worker bee has pollen baskets; the queen lacks them. The worker bee has a straight, barbed, unretractable sting; the queen has a curved, smooth sting. The worker bee loses its life after stinging, but the queen does not.

A worker bee takes 21 days to develop from the egg to the adult, while a queen, who is much larger, requires only 15 or 16 days. The colony itself has the power of determining whether a fertilized egg shall develop into a queen or a worker bee.

Raising a New Queen.

During its normal existence, only one queen is necessary to maintain the population of a colony. Unlike the worker bee, who lives but six weeks, the queen may live two, three, or more years, but eventually she also becomes old and decrepit. Then a new queen must be raised to carry on the life of the colony.

The raising of a new queen is entrusted to the worker bees. An egg or a newly hatched larva less than three days old is selected. The cell in which the larva is deposited is broken down and enlarged and the heiress apparent is given special care and attention from this time on. For the first three days worker and drone larvae are fed royal jelly, a milky white secretion from the glands in the heads of worker bees. After the third day a coarser food, such as nectar and pollen, is given them. The queen larvae, however, are fed royal jelly exclusively throughout the larval stage, which lasts five and a half days.

The difference in diet during the two and a half days, therefore, determines whether the larva will develop into a bee that cannot reproduce but possesses all other maternal instincts, or one that has the function of reproduction but lacks all maternal instincts, for the queen becomes virtually an egg-laying machine.

Only Malady Prevalent in Virgin Isles Is Indolence

Temperature in the Virgin Islands ranges in the winter from 70 to 80, and in the summer it jumps about five degrees. The islands are swept by trade winds that blow almost constantly.

Hardly anybody is sick in Saint Thomas. Nobody has colds or bronchitis or pneumonia. Tropical diseases are almost unknown. Yellow fever does not exist, and malaria doesn't count. The only malady contracted by visitors is indolence, and the sooner you get it the happier you will be, for it's lovely being lazy in the Virgins.—Eleanor Early in Cosmopolitan.

Being Natural

Nothing so much prevents our being natural as the desire of appearing so. Opie Read put it this way. "The most difficult thing in the world is to be natural."

CONSTIPATED 30 YEARS

"For thirty years I had chronic constipation. Sometimes I did not go for four or five days. I also had awful gas bloating, headaches and pain in the back. Adlerika helped right away. Now I eat sausage, bananas, pie, anything I want and never felt better. I sleep soundly all night and enjoy life." —Mrs. Mabel Schott

If you are suffering from constipation, sleeplessness, sour stomach, and gas bloating, there is quick relief for you in Adlerika. Many report action in 30 minutes after taking just one dose. Adlerika gives complete action, cleaning your bowel tract where ordinary laxatives do not even reach.

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adlerika checks the growth of intestinal bacteria and colon bacilli."

Give your stomach and bowels a real cleansing with Adlerika and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and chronic constipation. Sold by all druggists and drug departments.

No Need to Suffer "Morning Sickness"

"Morning sickness"—is caused by an acid condition. To avoid it, acid must be offset by alkalis—such as magnesia.

Why Physicians Recommend Milnesia Wafers

These mint-flavored, candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia in solid form—the most pleasant way to take it. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly, then swallowed, they correct acidity in the mouth and throughout the digestive system and insure quick, complete elimination of the waste matters that cause gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 48, at 35c and 60c respectively, and in convenient tins for your handbag containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately one adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores sell and recommend them.

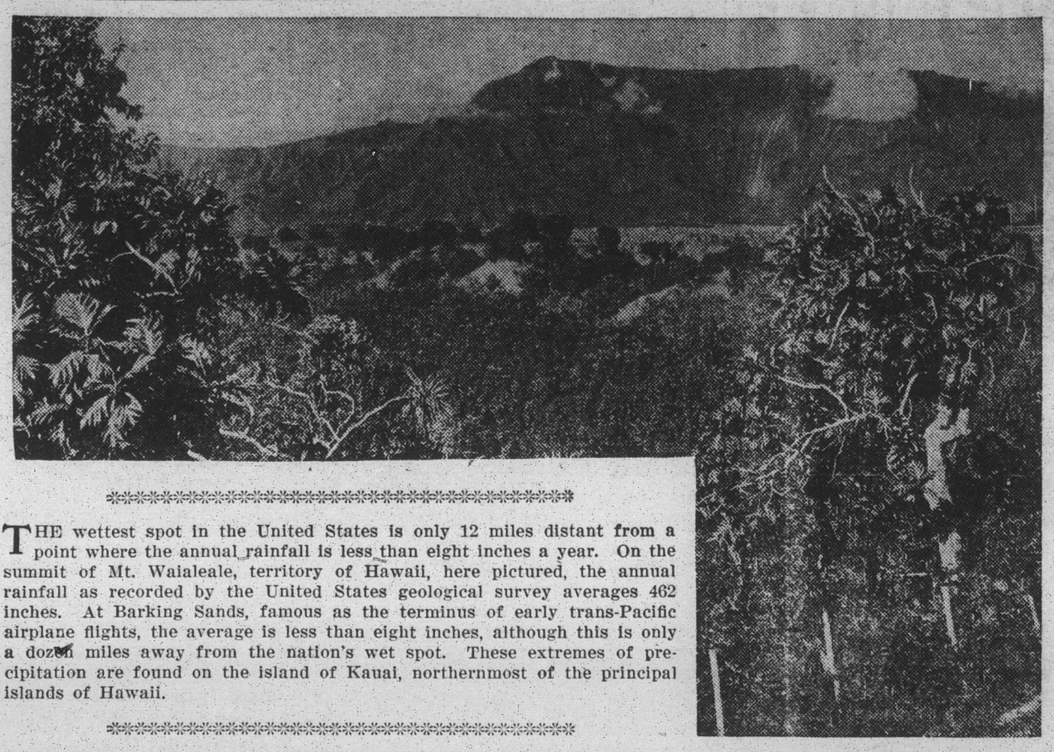
Here's Wettest Spot in the United States



THE wettest spot in the United States is only 12 miles distant from a point where the annual rainfall is less than eight inches a year. On the summit of Mt. Waialeale, territory of Hawaii, here pictured, the annual rainfall as recorded by the United States geological survey averages 462 inches. At Barking Sands, famous as the terminus of early trans-Pacific airplane flights, the average is less than eight inches, although this is only a dozen miles away from the nation's wet spot. These extremes of precipitation are found on the island of Kauai, northernmost of the principal islands of Hawaii.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

THE GREAT FIGHT

DOWN from the top of the ridge back of the pond of Paddy the Beaver plunged Lightfoot the Deer, his eyes blazing with rage. He had understood the screaming of Sammy Jay. He knew that somewhere down there was the big stranger he had been looking for.

The big stranger had understood Sammy's screaming quite as well as Lightfoot. He knew that to run away now would be to prove himself a coward and forever disgrace himself in the eyes of Miss Daintyfoot. He must fight. There was no way out of it; he must fight. The hair on the back of his neck stood up with anger just as did the hair on the neck of Lightfoot. His eyes blazed. He bounded out into a little open place by the pond of Paddy the Beaver and there he waited.

Meanwhile Sammy Jay was flying about in the greatest excitement, screaming at the top of his lungs: "A fight! A fight! A fight!" Blacky the Crow, over in another part of the Green Forest, heard him and took up the cry and at once hurried over to Paddy's pond. Everybody who was near enough hurried there. Bobby Coon and Unc' Billy Possum climbed trees from which they could see and at the same time be safe. Billy Mink hurried to a safe place on the dam of Paddy the Beaver. Paddy himself climbed up on the roof of his house out in the pond. Peter Rabbit and Jumper the Hare, who happened to be not far away, hurried over where they could peep out from under some young hemlock trees. Buster Bear shuffled down the hill and watched from the other side of the pond. Reddy and Granny Fox were both there.

For what seemed like the longest time, but which was for only a minute, Lightfoot and the big stranger stood glaring at each other. Then, snorting with rage, they lowered their heads and plunged together. Their antlers clashed with a noise that rang through the Green Forest and both fell to their knees. There they pushed and struggled.

It was a terrible fight. Everybody said so. If they hadn't known before, everybody knew now what those great antlers were for. Once the big stranger managed to reach Lightfoot's right shoulder with one of the sharp points of his antlers and made a long tear in Lightfoot's gray coat. It only made Lightfoot fight harder.

Back and forth they plunged and the ground was torn up by their feet. Both were getting out of breath and from time to time they had to stop for a moment's rest, still with their heads together. Then they would push and shove and strain again more fiercely than ever. Never had such a fight been seen in the Green Forest.

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

SALAD DRESSINGS

THE basic dressing which is more used than any other is french dressing. Prepared with a sweet, fresh olive oil there is no dressing more appetizing. One may use any of the table or salad oils in place of the olive if preferred. Take six tablespoons of oil, two of vinegar or lemon juice, one teaspoon of salt, one-fourth teaspoon of white pepper or a few dashes of cayenne. Beat thoroughly until well mixed. Adding a small piece of ice will hurry the mixing. For a sauce to serve with cold meats and tongue use:

Worcestershire French Dressing.

Add to the french dressing one and one-half tablespoons of worcestershire sauce, beat well. For any green salad, add two tablespoons of chili sauce to the french dressing with a teaspoon of minced onion or one-fourth teaspoon of onion juice.

Southern French Dressing.

To the riced yolks of two hard cooked eggs, add one teaspoon of minced green pepper. Serve with meat, vegetable or fish salad, with the french dressing.

Pickled Onion French Dressing.

To the french dressing add one-half teaspoon of dry mustard, mixed with the salt and two tablespoons of finely minced pickled onions. Serve on fish or meat salads such as tongue or corned beef.

Chiffonade Dressing.

Add to the french dressing one tablespoon of pimiento, one-half tablespoon of parsley and one hard cooked egg, all finely minced.

Savory French Dressing.

To the french dressing add one-half teaspoon of onion juice or minced chives, one teaspoon of minced parsley, one tablespoon of chow-chow, mix well and serve on asparagus tips, cucumber or any vegetable salad.

TRY THIS TRICK

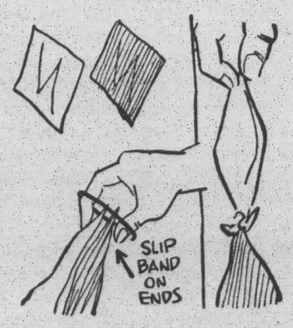
SELF-TYING HANDKERCHIEFS



THIS trick is both quick and startling. The magician begins by borrowing two handkerchiefs. He tosses them in the air. As they fall, the magician catches one of them.

The spectators are amazed to see that the second handkerchief has tied itself to the first. The magician is holding one, with the other dangling from it.

To conclude the wizardry, the magician passes his hand over the knot, which promptly disappears. The handkerchiefs are returned to their owners.

Though surprising, this trick is easily performed. The magician has a small rubber band over one thumb and forefinger. He slips the rubber band over a corner of each handkerchief.

When the handkerchiefs are tossed and caught, they appear to be tied together. The supposed knot is vanished by stroking the handkerchiefs and drawing away the rubber band.

WAITING FOR A RAINBOW

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WAITIN' in the rain for a rainbow,
Sighin' in the dark for the dawn,
Hopin' for the weather
To change altogether,
Waitin' for the rain to be gone—
That'll never get you very, very far.
That'll only leave you settin' where you are,
Weather gettin' wetter,
Nothin' gettin' better—
No, you'll never get there, that is pretty plain,
Wishin' for a rainbow, just waitin' in the rain.

Workin' in the rain till a rainbow
Brightens up the gray of the sky,
Even when it's rainin'
To work uncomplainin',
Waitin' for the clouds to go by—
That'll always get you farther on your way,
That'll make a pleasure out o' ev'ry day,
Heaven gettin' brighter,
Labor gettin' lighter—
Only way to get there, that is purty plain,
Not waitin' for a rainbow, but workin' in the rain!

Humming Birds Can't Walk

Humming birds have tiny feet but can't walk. They can slide along a branch but cannot move as much as an inch. If they want to travel that distance or more they fly up and then down to the desired spot. When they fly they pull their feet in, like a streamlined airplane, cutting down wind resistance.

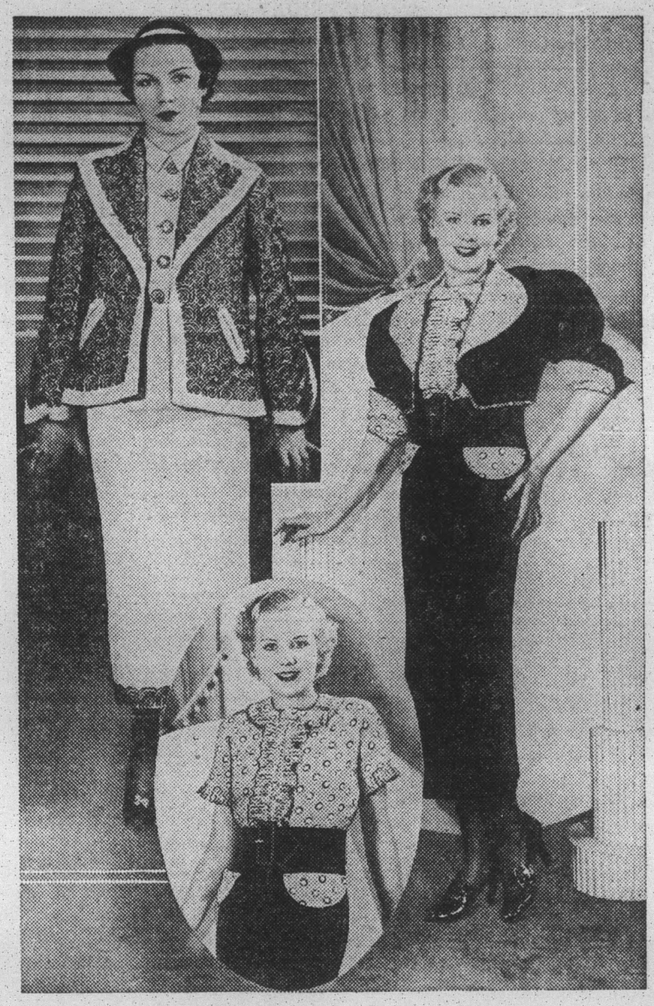
Jacket Costumes Lead Fashion Parade

By CHERIE NICHOLAS



JACKET costume! A mere matter of two words and about the most important chapter in the story of the new spring and summer fashions is told. The consensus among style creators who know whereof they speak is that becomingness, femininity and individuality are the keynotes of women's fashions this season.

The new costume with its inevitable jacket (if not a cunningly devised cape) does just that. It flatters, it feminizes and being in a widely versatile mood, it tunes to type at the will of its ingenious designer. So it is that the colorful spring parade is mostly a matter of just one jacket costume after another.

Trekking along in the procession, boleros of Spanish extraction hobnob with jackets that have gone obviously Chinese. Hosts of smart Etons vary the program together with a goodly showing of stylish fingertip jackets. The new "baby reefer" and the just as new and important "baby swagger" are likewise keeping step to the spring-song of fashion.

The new redingote, Eton and bolero costumes in navy or black which are considered fashion "firsts" on the style program form intriguing alliances with prints that pride themselves on their gay coloring. Jacket linings, sleeve facings, blouses and innumerable trimming details of bizarre print in contrast to monotones challenge designers to work out stunning effects.

Jackets of bright print or embroidery worn with gown or skirt in a solid color are outstanding. This is true not only of silk and woolen ensembles but swanky printed linens and colorful peasant-print cottons are especially attractive styles, according to this formula.

At a recent preview of foremost styles presented by the Chicago Wholesale Market district to an audience of fashion enthusiasts who had gathered from far and near to witness this significant event, the idea of the jacket costume was dramatically stressed for both daytime and evening dress. The jacketed models herewith illustrated were selected from this showing of surpassingly chic clothes as being not only practical but also flatteringly wearable.

The model to the right features a swank bolero type. The brief jacket is lined, cuffed and collared with the same print that fashions the frilly blouse pictured with bolero removed in inset. The fine pleatings, the peplum tabs below the very wide belt, the straight narrow silhouette of the skirt and especially the huge full-at-top sleeves are highly significant style details.

The perfectly stunning spectator-sports costume to the left eloquently bespeaks the "reason why" jacket ensembles are at the top o' the mode. A style so breathtaking as this will coax a burst of enthusiasm from even the most blase. The dress of voguish sheer white woolen is topped with a jacket of unique cut that is handsomely all-over braided with soutache. The original model is done in bright navy but black on white is equally as effective. Which leads us to tell you that some of the smartest costumes going this season are white worked with black soutache or made up with effective touches of black-and-white print. Note the scroll of soutache finishing the skirt hemline. It tells you that designful hemlines are a very important style gesture.

PLEATED SLEEVES

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Designers are doing interesting things with sleeves. Pleated sleeves are very high style this season. This frock of dusty pink moss crepe makes appeal because of its sophisticated simplicity. Its pleated sleeves give an air of distinction. The belt, tiny collar and felt beret are in the popular Dubonnet shade. Suggestive of spring and employing all the modern touches is the lovely petit point bag in pastoral design by Madame Jolles of Vienna. This charming bag with its dark ground and subdued colorings with jeweled clasps at the side of the gold frame makes a striking contrast to the gown.

Fancy Buttons

If you are having a number of buttons covered for a suit or dress have a few extra ones made and drop them in your mending basket. No doubt you will be very grateful for them later on.

LACE NOW INVADES WHOLE DRESS FIELD

The new summer collections in Paris are always eagerly awaited. This year they have brought more in novelty and charm than could have been anticipated. Femininity characterizes the fashions offered by all of the great designers, and in achieving feminine charm, the couturiers have chosen the preferred medium—lace. This return to favor of a material so long overlooked by the mode is outstanding, and it has come back not only in the classic varieties of lace to which we have become accustomed, but in many new and fascinating forms, which seem very definitely fabrics.

These new types are being employed widely for street dresses and summer suits, definitely tailored in effect. The prominence given lace in this type of clothes has also called attention to the practicalness and charm of cotton nets and tulle as a material for tailoring. Suits of these materials are shown and the new laces are utilized for long redingotes which veil evening frocks in an alluring mist.

Hand-Knit Silk Ensembles Are New Fashion Offering

Import collections show a number of hand-knitted silk ensembles. Anny Blatt, first to create a hand-knitted evening gown, has launched a hand-knitted silk wedding gown and a fine, sheer hand-knit veil. Her collection also includes knitted silk suits, dresses and blouses in daytime, cocktail and dinner styles.

New pure silk yarns have been developed for both hand-made and machine-knit costumes. They are easy to work with, wash like lingerie and are dressy enough for afternoon and bridge wear. The new silk yarns, which are the latest word to knitters, come in a wide range of colors both dark and light.

GLOOMY MEMORIES OF WAR

Nineteen years ago this month United States took up arms, as an ally with other nations against Germany. We tried to do more than that; we hoped to make the world safe for Democracy. Thus, we felt that interested in the cause to the extent that we willingly loaned liberally, running into the billions to 14 different European nations. To our sad surprise, about every country still owes heavily, war debts long over-due. Great Britian, France and Belgium are expected to make an offer for settlement of their debts.

Interest payments of these three nations will be over-due by June 15th; Great Britian, $85,000,000; France, $74,000,000, and Belgium, $9,000,000. The principal amounts for these nations are respectfully, Great Britian, $4,950,000,000; France, $4,041,000,000, and Belgium, $423,000,000. One the basis of these figures the three powers, now eager to extend their credit in order that they may have funds for the vast armament programs, may offer one of these plans: a final lump-sum cash payment or a sharply scaled short term refunding plan. The other countries owing United States are Austria, Estonia, Greece, Hungary, Italy, Czechoslovakia, Latvia, Poland, Roumania and Yugoslavia.

We believe in peace and continue to talk peace; the American Friends Service Committee plans to launch a nation-wide emergency peace campaign this month to mobilize sentiment in America against war, and to bring about political and economic changes necessary to remove the causes of war thruout the world. This is a good movement but while we seek peace, many are still saying that war cannot be avoided! Let us hope for success thru this great effort for world peace.

United States lost over 100,000 fine young men and brought back 500,000 wounded from what was pronounced an unjustifiable war in Europe; (and this same country is again festering under another war threat that may involve every European nation.) We spent 25 million dollars in the last war including 10 billions or more lent to these ally nations.

Yes, we won the war, but think of the aftermath! the results. America was treated with the spirit of ingratitude and even suffered "kicks", while with no intention on our part of getting territory or spoils; this was not what we went into the war for. Not gain of wealth or land, but to settle the struggle between countries and hasten world peace; it was war to end all wars!

Today our foreign war debt including all other expenses, is over 31 billion dollars, more than the first cost. Here is an object lesson: We war over high taxes, but if there must be wars we must be willing to pay for them! The World War was predicted, at the time we entered, would be settled and over in four weeks, but it last four years — the most terrible war in all modern history.

The Civil War (1861-65) cost four years of unspeakable strife between brother and brother, and caused the sacrifice of nearly a million lives. It set the nation back eight billion dollars, besides it impoverished millions more, especially in the states of the South, many generations to come. No wonder General Grant exclaimed: "War Is Hell!"

Harvard University, the oldest educational institution in the United States has just celebrated the 300th anniversary of its founding, which was in March, 1636 at Cambridge, Mass. When it first opened its doors, President Henry Dunster announced the purpose of the academy was for educating the "English and Indian youth in knowledge and Godliness". Since that time it has grown to be the largest and best equipped university in the United States and ranks as a great honor to the nation for its educational advancement and accomplishments. There is an average of over 8,000 students annually, with a faculty of about 2,000. It took its name from John Harvard, who gave 300 valuable books to start a library which has over 2,000,000 volumes. Under its president, Dr. James B. Conant it helps to mold the social and economic policies of America.

Old Jupiter Pluvius continues to be kind by turning on the taps for the benefit of living humanity and the land of his possession. April came in between periods of rain showers and the friendly omens point to a "wet April". It reminds us that "April showers bring forth May flowers." As the days grow longer, the month will have gained over an hour by the the end. Astronomers call this a "wet moon", but it will take too much space to explain this theory to the common layman. April rains usually make up for delinquent inches of rainfall in the past, thus redeeming the season's quota of living waters. Speaking of "living waters" of the hills, there is a spring in Palestine that has continued its incessant flowing for over 2,000 years, and still going strong.

There are gratifying reports in banking circles in the United States which ought to establish renewed confidence among all depositors. There were only five bank failures in 1934-35, according to the Comptroller of Currency, and there were far from the worst, when back in the time period of bank failures. Much praise is attributed to the excellent work of the new Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation which has contributed its activities directed to bank welfare in general. Another hopeful sign of better times immediately ahead is that the amount of deposits in national banks were $24,800,000,000, the largest ever known. The Government is giving unstinted attention to the great foundation for commercial and professional security and stability.

Too much bad politics and bad business go together. Nations do not become prosperous by creating ficticious values, neither by manufacturing credits. Only thru production by honest effort and honest sharing will prosperity come, even by the sweat of our brows. Honest toil is a privilege to be coveted by any able bodied man knowing that a peck a trouble is easier to get than an ounce of happiness; thus good goods come in small packages. A great leader must be absorbed in his work, therefore the big job for this political nation is to select men who can win and lead the nation from the wanderings of the past.

News From Point Loma High School

The Rose Maiden, a beautiful cantata is being rehearsed. The entire music department, including both glee clubs and the orchestra, are joining forces. The production of the Rose Maiden is being done on a large scale, and those who remember Rosamunde given last year, will be eager to see this new effort of the music department.

A guest artist, Don Coker, former Point Loma High student is to sing the tenor lead. He is at present studying at State college and so is available to assist his alma mater, Point Loma High school. Mr. Green, director of the vocal music at the high school is in favor of establishing a bond between graduates and the school. Coker was considered an outstanding tenor at Point Loma. Since the school has had several very fine voices, this praise of an outstanding voice, must mean something exceptional.

Final selection of the leads for the cantata will be made this week and released as soon as possible.

—PLHS—

Principal Clarence R. Swenson, attended the secondary schools principals convention at Pasadena, April 2, 3, 4. A discussion of modern educational problems occupied the major interest of the principals.

Since the aims are in line with what is being attempted at Point Loma, it is interesting to note that we are up with the trend. Adjustment of education to the student is the new attitude. Groupings have tried to further aid student in working at own level, instead of competing with those far advanced. Emphasis on the socialized type of instruction was especially stressed. Modern classrooms try to preserve the fundamentals, but dress them in more attractive form in order that the student will be interested.

—PLHS—

Speaking of educational trends, Education Week is to be held next week. Point Loma, as well as the other schools in the city will observe open house. Parents and friends are urged to visit the school, to observe for themselves the types of work being done, and to meet the teachers. That personal contact between parents and teachers is invaluable and sometimes changes the entire outlook for a maladjusted student.

—PLHS—

Seniors have finally chosen the seal for the class ring. The three senior high school classes will have an opportunity to vote to choose the same seal. It they do choose it, the seal will be used for the next three graduating classes. Jessops are furnishing the rings and pins to the seniors on order.

—PLHS—

New students at Point Loma are: Eileen Alex, New York City; Virginia Enriquez, Bakersfield; Irene Quinn, San Diego High school; Dorothy and Marian Ray, Lomita; John Cassidy, Woodrow; Bill Edwards, Escondido; Bernice Cashetter, Honolulu.

GOODWILL INDUSTRIES REPORT FEWER MEN NEED WORK

In reporting upon the work of his organization for the month of March Rev. Myron Insko, superintendent of the San Diego County Goodwill Industries, states that nearly $2000 was expended in wages during the month for needy men and women who thus got "Not Charity but a Chance," through the kindness of residents of the county, who contributed their cast-off articles that this work might go on. Upon his return from Pittsburg, where he has been in attendance at the annual conference of Goodwill superintendents, Supt. Insko finds the three Goodwill trucks busier than ever collecting the newspapers and other contributions donated. He finds the piano used in the chapel missing, because the owner, who had kindly lent it to the organization, found a buyer. It is hoped that someone else who has a similar instrument not in use will be willing to either lend it or present it to the organization, where it will be well cared for and daily in use for the benefit of humanity.

Last month the number of hours of labor was 9161 at the San Diego plant. There would have been more but there has been on many days an insufficient number of men applying for work to handle the large number of papers turned in. There is no scarcity of women workers in the laundry and sewing room, but for some reason the number of men in need, in San Diego, seems to have largely fallen off.

INVEST YOUR BONUS Electrically

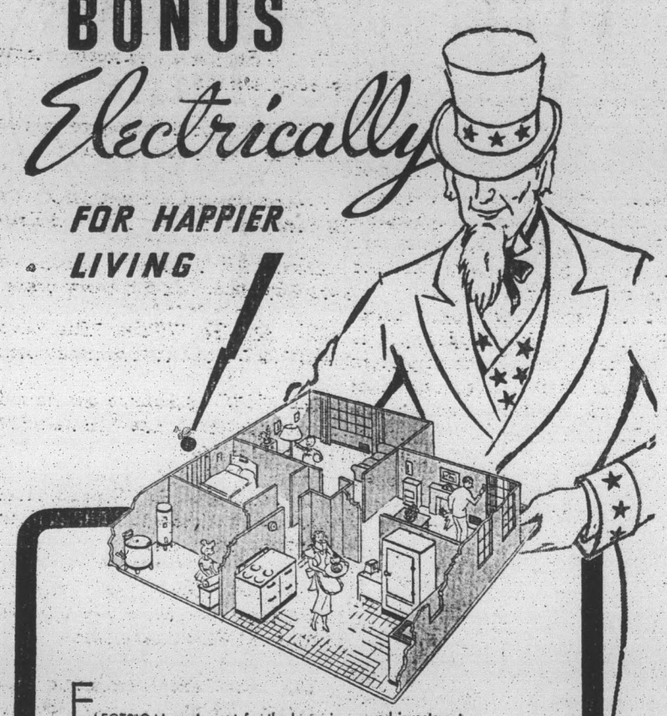
FOR HAPPIER LIVING



ELECTRICAL equipment for the home is a sound investment not alone because it increases the money value of the property . . . but for that more important reason that it makes a happier place in which to live.

Whether that investment be for a modern electric refrigerator to provide health protection and economy in buying foods; one or more of those labor-saving machines such as a washer, iron, or vacuum cleaner; an extra radio for entertainment; or any of the many smaller electrical conveniences such as food mixers, toasters, waffle irons, etc. . . . home becomes a happier, more comfortable and pleasanter place to live and to entertain your friends . . . a place in which you can take greater pride of possession.

You will find that electric dealers of San Diego are ready to meet any reasonable financial arrangement to suit your needs.

ELECTRIC REFRIGERATION BUREAU OF SAN DIEGO COUNTY

HISTORY ESTABLISHMENT OF CALIFORNIA MISSIONS

California's famous old Missions, with their historical and romantic backgrounds, annually attract thousands of visitors. Twenty-one Franciscan Missions were founded by the Rev. Fray Junipero Serra and his colleagues extending from San Diego to what is now Sonoma county. Some are in ruins, others have been restored, all are preserved as priceless landmarks. Because of recent widespread revival of interest in the old Missions, Earl Lee Kelly, Director of the Dept. of Public Works, at the request of Governor Frank F. Merriam, has prepared for the benefit of visitors, brief histories of them directions on how to reach them over California highways. For the purposes of this series, the Missions will be taken up in the order of their location from south to north, rather than in the sequence of their founding.

MISSION SAN DIEGO de ALCALA JULY 16,1769

When Father Junipero Serra arrived at San Diego with Governor Gaspar de Portola after their arduous march from La Paz the conditions they found there were enough to discourage a far stouter heart than the valiant priest's. Many soldiers and sailors of the sea expedition had died from scurvy and the survivors still were suffering from the disease.

But, as Father Palou recorded, "that fervent zeal which continually glowed and burned in the heart of our venerable Father Junipero did not permit him to forget the principal object of his journey."

Two weeks after the arrival of the land force, Governor Portola, under orders to locate Monterey Bay and establish there a presidio, departed for the north with a small expedition on July 14, 1769. And two days later, Sunday July 16, Father Serra, impatient to take up his task of converting the Indians to Christianity, founded the first mission in California.

For the location of his mission, Father Serra selected a site adjoining the Spanish camp. Until this day, holy Mass had been celebrated in a brushwood shelter and for the Spaniards only. The date selected for the establishment of the mission was an appropriate one, as Father Palou observed; for on that day, in the year 1212, the Spaniards fighting under the banner of the Holy Cross won an historical victory over the Mohamedans, which annually was celebrated by the Spanish church as the Triumph of the Holy Cross.

"Furthermore," says Father Zephyrin Engelhardt, mission historian, "it was the day of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, through whose intercession Father Serra hoped to wean the savages from their beastly practices and induce them to accept the ennobling Faith of Christ".

Assisted by Fathers Vizcaino and Parron, Father Serra, on the morning of July 16, raised the Cross where the chapel was to stand, blessed and sprinkled the site with holy water and himself sang the High Mass and preached a sermon, thus dedicating his first California mission, which he named in honor of San Diego de Alcala (Saint James of Alcala). Many years before, Sebastian Viscaino, discovering San Diego Bay, had named it after San Diego de Alcala, a man of lowly birth in the town of St. Nicholas, in the diocese of Seville, Spain, who was cannonized by Pope Sixtus V, in 1588. He was a Capuchin monk at the convent of Alcala in 1463.

The ceremony was witnessed by a little group of twenty-eight, all the able-bodied men in camp, including eight Lower California Indians. Others of the sea and land expeditions had died, were ill or had accompanied Portola north.

Father Serra and his missionaries found the Indians unfriendly but not hostile. The savages accepted presents of beads and clothing and even stole such articles, but would not partake of any of the Spaniards' food, believing the deaths and sickness among the invaders were caused by the food they ate. This fear of the Indians Father Palou later looked upon as the working of Divine Providence for had the natives taken to eating the stores of the Spaniards the members of the expedition would have died of starvation.

Knowing no word of the Indian language, Father Serra nevertheless proceeded with his work of converting the aborigines. A native boy who evinced a liking for the missionaries and who picked up a smattering of Spanish was used as an interpreter.

Coveting trinkets and clothing, the Indians became bolder in their thieving and being ignorant of firearms they jeered the soldiers. Less than a month after the mission was started, a band of savages attacked, but was driven off, the Spaniards refraining from firing upon them.

Two days later, while four soldiers comprising the mission guard were absent watering their horses and Fathers Serra and Vizcaino and mission workers and servants were unprotected the savages attacked in force. Father Vizcaino and several others were wounded by arrows before the soldiers returned and opened fire. Joseph Maria, a servant, died of his wounds. Determined to teach the Indians a lesson, the soldiers killed a number of them with their muskets and for the first time the natives learned that the firearms of the strangers were deadly.

Father Serra continued his friendly overtures to the Indians. Meanwhile, Governor Portola and his expedition had failed in their quest of Monterey Bay, and returned discouraged to San Diego on January 25, 1770, to find only 20 members of the mission force alive and food stores almost exhausted. He announced his intention of returning to Mexico with ships and men and abandoning California if the San Antonio with fresh supplies did not arrive by March 19, the day of the feast of St. Joseph.

Father Serra was heartbroken and declared that he and Father Juan Crespi would remain alone to carry on their work. He prayed day and night for the arrival of the San Antonio. Providentially, on March 19, the day before Portola was to depart, the sail of a ship was sighted far out at sea. Altho the vessel proceeded past the harbor and disappeared, Father Serra was overjoyed. Four days later the San Antonio put in, having been forced to turn back on her way to Monterey by a shortage of water. In this incident Father Serra saw the hand of God.

Confidence was restored to Governor Portola and on April 16 a sea expedition including Father Serra started for Monterey and the following day Portola with a land force again set out in search of the northern bay.

In July, 1771, Father Serra sent Father Luis Jayme from Monterey to San Diego to assume charge of the mission. The latter, with Father Francisco Dumetz and later, Father Vincent Fuster, carried on bravely but early in 1772, with the missionaries subsisting on a half pint of corn, twenty ounces of flour and a little milk daily, the situation appeared hopeless. Hearing of the plight of his colleagues, Father Serra in Monterey ordered provisions sent to them and on September 16, 1772, himself arrived at San Diego. Conditions improved and Father Serra in October set sail for Mexico to submit to the viceroy and the College of San Fernando his plans for mission extension, returning to San Diego in March, 1774. He found the mission thriving and approved its removal to a new site about six miles up the valley of the San Diego river. He then continued on to Monterey.

The new mission prospered and by 1775 had ninety-seven Christian Indians enrolled. On October 3, 1775, Fathers Jayme and Fuster baptized sixty Indians. But that night, two of the converts left the mission, aroused the natives by telling them that all were to be baptized by force and 800 armed savages stormed the mission, killing Father Jayme, Jose Arroyo, the blacksmith, and Ursulino, the carpenter, looted the chapel and buildings and then set them afire.

Captain Rivera hastened to San Diego from Monterey with troops, and the ringleaders were seized and flogged over the protests of Father Fuster. Owing to strained relations between the missionaries and the military over this incident it was not until the arrival of Father Serra from Monterey in July, 1776, that actual rebuilding of the mission was started and it was not until 1780 that it was completed.

Now began an era of prosperity and fruitful work for the missionaries. In September, 1808, construction of a new church was launched, it was dedicated November 12, 1813 and its ruins stand today. In 1834, the mission was secularized and passed into the hands of a parish priest. From the date of its founding in 1769 to its secularization, 6,638 persons were baptized, 4,428 persons buried and 6,638 couples married.

After it was secularized, Mission San Diego de Alcala fell upon evil days. In June, 1846, Governor Pio Pico of California sold it to Santiago Arguello for past services to the government. American troops were quartered there during the Mexican War and it was a military post until 1858. Thereafter it was neglected and its walls began to crumble. In 1862 President Lincoln signed an executive order returning it to the Catholic Church. After twenty years of untiring efforts on the part of Albert Mayrhofer of San Diego, the mission was restored to its original form in 1931 and now is open to the public as a museum and lasting monument to its founder Junipero Serra.

——oOOOOo——

Mission San Diego de Alcala is 7 miles from Fifth and Broadway in San Diego. Leaving from that point by auto the mission visitor will pass the beautiful Balboa Park, where the wonderful California Pacific International Exposition now is being held. The route is past Balboa Park out Park boulevard, Adams avenue and Ward road direct to the mission.

Entering San Diego from the north motorists using the main State Highway, Route 101, travel over the new Rose Canyon road to the outskirts of Old Town, turn left to Taylor st., then north on Taylor to Camino Del Rio, which leads direct to the mission. The route is along the course of the San Diego River thru beautiful rolling country. The visitor may stop at Ramona's Marriage Place and Serra Museum at Old Fort Stockton before proceeding on Camino Del Rio.

Motorists from San Joaquin Valley points may take the Inland route from Los Angeles, U. S. 395 direct to the mission. Arizona and Imperial Valley visitors will follow U. S. 395 route along El Cajon avenue to Fairmont avenue, north to Camino Del Rio and then west to Ward Road and the mission.

Mission bell guide posts along El Camino Real, the State highway, from San Diego to Sonoma direct visitors to all the missions. The first of these directional signs stands in front of Mission San Diego de Alcala and bears the following inscription: "Erected by Mr. and Mrs. A. S. C. Forbes, in memory of Fray Luis Jayme, the first martyr of California. Fr. Jayme was massacred by the Indians November 4, 1775. The bell was blessed and christened 'Jayme' by the Reverend J. C. Mesny."

Kitchen

Are you on good terms with your own kitchen? You ought to be since it is your "office" and the scene of a goodly portion of the day's labour. Every woman wants a pretty kitchen . . . and often enough doesn't have it. But don't waste too much sympathy on her, because it is largely her own fault. No matter how windowless the room may be, or old fashioned the fixtures, there is truthfully no reason why it should be bleak or gloomy. There are many inexpensive things that can be done today to dress up the kitchen, so let's start with the largest order and work down to the little things . . . the little things that really count.

In the first place don't let anyone catch your kitchen with a dirty face. Scrub the dirt, grease and film from the old paint, get a good wall paint that will endure (it isn't expensive) and then put it on. Any paint dealer will give you instructions or supply you with booklets on how the job should be done. You'll be able to use it, scrub it, and enjoy the room with no fear for its loveliness. With proper cleansing—soap and water—it will always look fresh and bright, the elements that identify the efficient home manager.

Then the floors—unless you've a willing husband to do your polishing for you, I'd suggest a liquid wax or a water-emulsion floor finish. It's easy to apply and a monthly waxing and a bi-weekly damp-mopping will take care of it.

Next, Refinish those odds and ends of furniture. Until you try your hand with brush and a can of quick-drying enamel you can't appreciate your skill. That scarred stool or battered chair can be made not only like new again, but in many cases even better and more attractive than before. And matched kitchen utensils are very swish and swank these days. Using the same shade as applied to your chairs, brighten up your wooden knife-box, the flower pots, the wooden handle on your coffee pot and saucepans, the bottom of your wooden salad bowl, the curtain rods, the inside of your cabinets, your cookie crocks and what have you. There is no end to it.

As to color schemes, make a choice that seems inviting and livable to you. A good cheerful blue might predominate—picked up in the edges of the curtains and in your lacquer work (especially if you can gather up the wherewithal to get a set of those grand copper cooking utensils), white walls, dark highly polished floor, with a touch of red in it, and a creamy white for stove and icebox—cabinets and cupboards of the same with a little gay stencil work in blue. But choose your own combinations. There are color cards available which practically solve your problem for you. And after all your labours, walk into your refurnished kitchen . . . and cheer.

Warren-Walker School

The Warren-Walker school is very happy to welcome Jacky Graff and Albert Gerhard Moe, both of Sunset Cliffs, to the nursery group.

Rhythmics and dancing under the capable supervision of Mrs. Mac Intyre of Sunset Cliffs, have been added to the school curriculum. Mrs MacIntyre has had many years of experience in this work, including her own studio and gymnasium in the Hawaiin Islands.

Mrs. E. A. Walker, principal, and Miss Price are attending the 1936 convention of teachers being held this week in Yosemite national park.

The spring vacation was enjoyed by all of our students in many different ways. Peter Pinney spent several days on a ranch in Santa Barbara. Ruth Doggett visited in Oceanside. Nancy and Maurice Read went to El Centro for a few days and also to Los Angeles.

FREE OPERA FOR OLD FOLKS NEXT SUNDAY AFTERNOON

So great has been the interest shown in the performance of the opera, "Cavalleria Rusticana" that it is to be repeated for the seventh time Sunday afternoon April 19 at the Russ auditorium.

This beautiful opera of Mascagni was originally rehearsed by the opera company and symphony orchestra, both units of the Federal WPA music project, for a single production, but six performances before 11,000 persons finds the public appetite still unsatisfied.

Believing there are many elderly people who have been among those not fortunate enough to hear the earlier concerts, the Board of Supervisors and department of Public Welfare have made arrangements for this special Sunday afternoon program. Recipients of Old Age Security and others of similar age are to be the especially invited guests. Reserved seat tickets have been issued to the old folks and reservations will be held until 2 o'clock. After that hour the doors will be open to the people not fortunate enough to get reserved seats, and to the general public, as long as the seats last.

Redhead Was No Flirt

She was red-headed, so the traffic cop's remonstrance was couched in dulcet tones after he untangled the traffic snarl.

"But you should have held out your hand to indicate you were going to turn," he murmured.

"I should say not!" snorted the fiery one. "Some of those loafers would thing I was waving at them and trying to flirt. Is that all?"

"Yes, ma'am," said the cop meekly.

"Yes, my dear, you're absolutely right."

Losing No Time

"Now, suppose," said the teacher, "a man working on the river bank suddenly fell in. He could not swim and would be in danger of drowning. Picture the scene. The man's sudden fall, the cry for help. His wife knows his peril and, hearing his screams, rushes immediately to the bank. Why does she rush to the bank?"

Whereupon a boy exclaimed, "To draw his insurance money."—Santa Fe Magazine.

Big Job, Too

Judge (to amateur yegg)—So they caught you with this bundle of silverware. Whom did you plunder?

Yegg—Two fraternity houses, your honor.

Judge (to sergeant)—Call up the downtown hotels and distribute this stuff.—Montana Banker.

Home Budgeting

Wife (at breakfast)—Could I have a little money for shopping today, dear?

Husband—Certainly. Would you rather have an old five or a new one?

Wife—A new one, of course.

Husband—Here's the one—and I'm $4 to the good.

How Long?

Tommy was listening to some of his sailor uncle's adventures.

"You see, sonny, I always believe in fighting an enemy with his own weapons," said his uncle.

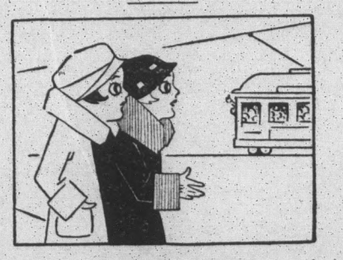
"Really?" gasped Tommy. "How long does it take you to sting a wasp?"

She Pitied Him

Cuthbert—Honey-bunch, when did you first realize that you loved me?

Honey-Bunch—When I got annoyed because people said you were an idiot.

GOING SOME!



"There is Tom waving from that car; is he always polite?"

"Very. He even says thank you to a street car conductor."

It Always Happens

"Do you think it possible to meet all one's friends at one time?" asked Flora.

"Certainly," replied Dora. "Just go out in your oldest frock and hat with a run in both your stockings and your nose unpowdered. You'll meet them all."—Northwestern Banker.

A Fall Guy

"Does horseback riding increase your weight?"

"No, I've been falling off ever since I started."

Marv's Fancy Costume

Little Marv was going to a fancy dress party aud could not decide what to wear. Then suddenly she had an idea. "May I go as a milkmaid?"

"But you are too small, Mary!"

"Oh, but I can go as a condensed milkmaid, can't I, mother?"

Old Stuff

"Well, Willie, your sister and I are going to be married. How's that for news?"

"Shucks! You just finding that out now?"

I was now well armed; but, rack my brains as I would, I could think of no way in which I could give Barley the slip.

The position was this. I wished to alight as close as I could to Yorick, yet not at the castle gate. Some spot in the entrance-drive would have suited my purpose well. It had been arranged, however, that the last three miles should be covered as fast as ever they could. Unless, therefore, I left the car before we approached the mouth of the entrance drive, I should have to wait until we had crossed the drawbridge, and that would be the end of my effort, for I should be seen retreating and Geoffrey and Barley would follow and spoil my game. It looked as though I should have to enter the castle and leave by some window or other as Pharaoh had done. But then there was always the drawbridge, flooded with light. . . .

Happening to glance at the mirror—the car was closed—I noticed the great Alsatian couched on the hinder seat. It occurred to me that the dog was there to watch me. My decision to cheat this surveillance hardened into a stony and vicious resolve.

One thing was in my favor—dusk had come in. And since Helena was not hastening, night would have fallen by the time we came to the drive. So my cousin had ordered, for though I think we all knew that the risk of encountering Pharaoh was very slight, it was Helena's presence that hoisted the flag of peril and made it essential that we should omit no endeavor to keep her person safe.

Again, it would have been worse to have been in the leading car. The net might have been drawn rather tighter—but that was all. My chances seemed desperately thin. . . .

In this state of mind I spent the next fifty minutes, smarting. And then at last, a mile from the entrance drive, the tail-light bore to the right and the coupe slowed down and stopped by the side of the way.

At once we did the same—and, somehow or other, I felt that my chance had come.

"I'll see what they want," I said, and slipped out of the car.

As I came to the door of the coupe—

"Look here, my son," said Geoffrey, "Lady Helena wants you to lead. I don't think it really matters, and so I have given way. From now on put down your foot and don't take it up again till you're over the bridge."

"Whatever happens," said Helena.

My blood was boiling.

"Is that an order?" I said.

"You gave it that name," said Geoffrey. "But we're going to do the same."

"All right," I said. "I don't care."

I made my way back to Barley and opened my door.

"I've got to leave you," I said. "They want me to ride with them. You're to go first now and don't lift your foot till you get to the castle gate. You'll be keeping them back as it is, for the coupe's the faster car."

"Very good, sir," said Barley.

I slammed the door and stood back and he let in his clutch.

As the car leapt forward, I fell on my face in the road.

I watched him pass the coupe—and, a moment later, the coupe draw into his wake.

In a savage triumph I watched its tail-light diminish. Then the road bent round to the left and it flicked out of sight.

CHAPTER X

Pharaoh's Way.

My six-mile walk to Starlight did me a world of good. It seemed to limber my muscles and steady my wits; the darkness secured me, the cool night air refreshed me, the silence rested my mind.

A furlong before I reached the place, I was careful to leave the road and to make my way through the woods for the next half-mile.

I believe it was that that saved me, for as I shall presently show, half an hour later Geoffrey and Barley and Sabre came down to that sinister three-way spot.

I heard the Alsatian coming a minute before he arrived.

For a moment my heart stood still, and then I saw that if Helena was not with him, I ought to be able to charm him from his duty to Geoffrey into a service he knew.

He found me seated a little way up the track.

In a flash I had him by the collar and had flung an arm around his neck.

"Sabre," I breathed, "Sabre, don't let me down. Stay with me, Sabre. I'll be so glad to have you. I'm on a good thing, Sabre. And you can help me, old fellow, to pull it off."

So we stayed for five minutes. Then, with my hand on his collar, I got to my feet.

I am sure the dog knew that the business on which I was bent was perilous stuff. From that time on, no man could have been more sagacious, more swift to make report, more scrupulous to obey. And, well as I saw, his sight was better than mine, for he saw the Rolls before I did, and checked me by standing still.

The car had been backed up the track and so stood ready to leave. No one at all was with her. Her radiator was cold.

For a moment I hesitated, wondering whether or no to make some disconnection and so disable the car. And then I decided against this. The outlook was too uncertain; before now I had wanted a car, and wanted it quick. I took my knife from its sheath and turned to the delicate business of running my quarry down. . . .

And here for the first time I saw that Sabre alone was going to save my venture from becoming as abject a failure as ever was seen.

As though I had told him my plight, I felt Sabre lower his head. Then he moved past the Rolls, led me up a sweet-smelling bank and presently out of the coppice and into the rolling park.

"When the lighth go out," said Dewdrop. "Thath what he thaid."

"That's right," said Bugle. "That's 'ow we done that villa down in the souf of France. That was a show, that was. You never see such precautions against a poor thief; 'ouse like a prison turned inside out—an' 'alf a packet of candles between two 'undred rooms. Ally Sloper was in that with Pharaoh. I can hear him laughin' now as he opened the garden-door. 'Dear brothers,' he says, 'I'm afraid there's some bandits inside. So don't you go for to cross them by showin' a light. Just as we makes the ball-room, a flunkey comes bustlin' in with a candle in each of his hands. 'All lights out,' says Pharaoh, and shoots him dead. Talk about panic. We well helped ourselves."

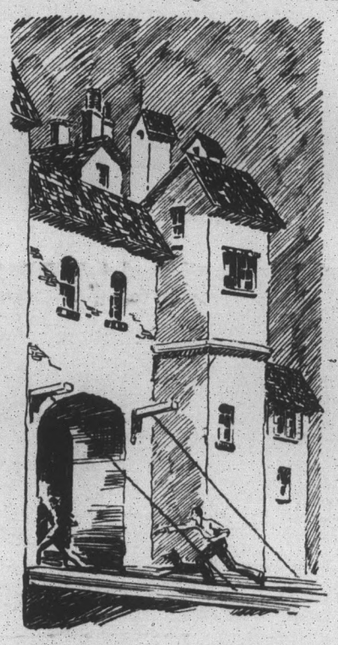
"But the stuff was there," said Rush. "That's what gets me. Panic's all right, but we don't know the way to the gold."

"Pharaoh's fly," said Bugle. "It ain't only the keys you can make wot can open doors."

There was a little silence.

The three were sitting in the meadows, just clear of the woods—not between the castle and Starlight, but close to the entrance drive. The lights of Yorick were showing a furlong away.

I was crouching directly behind them, against the trunk of a tree. Sabre, beside me, was standing still as a rock.



Sabre and I Ran Behind Them.

I could, I believe, have killed two—perhaps all three. But it was Pharaoh I wanted, and Pharaoh was not there.

I could not follow their reasoning. Why should the lights go out? In the ordinary way the lights were put out at midnight—perhaps before. But now the case was altered; the drawbridge had to be watched. And then this talk of panic. . . . Had Pharaoh suborned some servant to do his will?

Rush lifted his cuff from his wrist.

"Twenty past eleven," he said. "Gawd, wot a—day."

"When the lighth go out," said Dewdrop. "Unleth, of courthe, he thould happen to talk before."

I felt more confounded than ever. Dewdrop's final sentence did not make sense.

Rush led me back on to ground on which I could stand.

"I'd like to know where those two was takin' that dog."

"Dogs is all right," said Bugle.

"You bet," said Rush, warmly. "But that ain't the point. I'd like to know wot they're up to; they haven't come back."

"We've left no trail," said Bugle. "We never got out of the car."

"We're out of it now," said Rush. "An' I don't want no more surprises—not after las' night."

Dewdrop shifted uneasily.

"Ith very awkward," he said, "your lothin' that car. Pharaoh won't like that, he won't."

"Well, he'll have to lump it," said Rush. "I wish he'd been there. I tell you, I never saw nothing; there weren't no scrap. We don't even know who took it. Some performin' goriller, if you ask me. An' wot 'arm 'ad I done? Pharaoh won't like it, won't he? 'Ow would he like to be wiped off one of them benches on to them flags? Backwards, too. I dunno why I'm not dead. An' you talk about losing the car."

"It wasn't your fault," said Bugle.

But Dewdrop had no comfort to offer.

That the three were waiting for Pharaoh seemed pretty clear. But where was Pharaoh now? And what had Pharoah been doing since seven o'clock? He had not seen Rush or Bugle, nor had he learned their news. More. While his men had the use of the Rolls, Pharaoh was using his feet. And that was not like Pharaoh.

Somewhere in the pile of the castle a new light leaped into life—a definite eye of radiance, unshaded and unconfined. For a moment it stabbed the darkness, a steady pinprick of light. Then it broke into a series of flashes—a silent luminous stutter that no one could ever mistake.

And so my eyes were opened. Before his fellows could tell me, I knew the truth.

Pharaoh was on the ramparts, and Pharaoh was going to "talk." Pharaoh had been in the castle the livelong day. He had never left with Dewdrop. And now he was going to quench the lights of the castle; and when he had put them out, he would let his accomplices in.

Dewdrop deciphered the message, word by word.

"Clothe—up—to—bridge—thtand—by—to—enter—by—latht—nighth—pothtern—directly—lighth—fail."

The lamp flashed once more and went out.

Before I had gathered my wits, the three were afoot.

To this day I cannot decide what I should have done. Had I left them and dashed for the castle to give the alarm, before I had found the warden the lights would have failed. Had I attacked, whatever the result of my effort, I think it is clear that I must myself have gone down, but Pharaoh would still have been rampant. The brain, the will and the drive promoting this reign of terror belong to Pharaoh alone. And only the destruction of Pharaoh could end this sinister rule. First Pharaoh, and then his fellows; but Pharaoh first.

I say "that is how I saw it," but that is more than the truth, for I saw it very darkly, and as I stole after my quarry towards the bridge, I was myself the prey of a horrid uncertainty for which I was not to blame. I had staked and won; and now I was taking my winnings, as gamblers do. But this was no gaming-table; this was the instant business of life and death.

Wild to exploit the advantage I clearly held, in fear of wasting this by striking too soon, in fear of losing it by holding my hand, I moved 10 paces in rear of the shambling thieves, with one hand on Sabre's collar and the other on Geoffrey's knife.

So far as I had gathered, they knew no more than I did what Pharaoh was going to do. He was going to cut off the light—disarm the main switchboard, without a doubt. Then they were to use the postern—

The vision brought me up with a jerk.

How could they use the postern? The postern was fast. Pharaoh must have opened it somehow. Unknown to the warden, he must have obtained the key.

A sudden apprehension lifted its ugly head. In Pharaoh's presence Helena had handed the warden a master key. That was the key with which Pharaoh had opened the postern; though no alarm had been raised, because nothing was known. Pharaoh had killed the warden and had taken the master key.

That this was so, I instantly made up my mind. "Talk about panic. . . ." Blindness, havoc and panic would rule the night. The sheep would have no shepherd—and Geoffrey and Barley were gone. How Pharaoh would find the treasure, I could not think. But that was Pharaoh's affair. My way at least was clear. The thieves would bring me to Pharaoh and everything was to be gained by my holding my hand.

And here, as though by magic, the lights of Yorick went out.

There was was now less need of silence and more of speed, for the three rogues ran for the drawbridge as hard as they could. Sabre and I ran behind them, as though we belonged to the crew.

Ahead I saw something white by the castle wall. The three turned aside to avoid it, and I did the same. As I went by, I saw that it was a sheet. At that moment Sabre left me—he seemed to stop. But I had no time to wrangle.

The postern-door was open. The three stumbled in and stood waiting. And I stood waiting without, with a foot on the step and my head close against the wall.

Then came Pharaoh's voice.

"Bugle."

"'Ere," said Bugle at once.

"Don't talk. Whisper. Here. Take these goods. . . . Have you forgotten them?"

"I've got a shoe," breathed Bugle. "Wat's this?"

"A wipe," said Pharaoh. "To which side of the drive are the cars?"

"To the right from here."

"Drop the wipe on the drawbridge, and sling the shoe into the fields to the left of the drive. If you want to live, make it snappy. They're going to open those gates before you get back."

As Bugle went by me, I saw that here was a chance which would never return. Pharaoh had used no torch. If Bugle's reminiscence was true, the probability was that he would not use one tonight. I was tall and thick-set, very much about Bugle's build—a suit I had left at Plumage was fitting him very well; and Bugle had been told to whisper. . . .

In a flash I was running for the drawbridge in Bugle's wake.

The castle was alive with murmurs—sounds of disorder and distress; someone was out on the ramparts, raving (to me!) men were trampling and shouting; I could hear blows falling upon woodwork and the shiver of breaking glass. But I heard these things as in a dream, for now I knew whose key had opened the postern, whose handkerchief would lie on the drawbridge, whose slipper fall in the fields. . . .

Two Lovely Blouses For Your New Suit

1850-B

Blouses have to go a long way toward giving the tailored and mannish suits a sweet and feminine appearance. The model at the top is a new lingerie blouse made of madonna blue crepe de chine and trimmed with tiny crystal buttons. Soft puff sleeves tightly banded and a fluffy bow at the throat contribute the feminine touches.

At the bottom is a most attractive shirt blouse—it has a charming Peter Pan collar and buttoned panel for the waist closing—the model is made of batiste with either short sports or long bishop sleeves.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1850-B—both blouses—is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20; 40 and 42. Corresponding bust measurements 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. The top blouse requires 1⅞ yards of 35 or 39-inch material for size 16 (34), and blouse (B) requires 1¾ yards or 2½ yards with long sleeves, size 16 (34).

An S.O.S. was sent out one day the first of the week from the local branch Bank of America and interested citizens did not know whether to call the fire department or the police. It seemed there was an excited employee trying to get the grille doors open so he could go home for the night, but he was unable to manipulate the lock. Next time you get locked in Jim, let us know, and we'll bring you a sandwich and maybe a blanket or two, to make the night comfortable.

MONDAY NIGHT HONORS SAN DIEGO ON "CALIFORNIA HOUR"

With the departure of the six winners from San Diego County for Los Angeles to appear on the special program honoring this county on the "California's Hour" series Monday night, April 20th, the stage is all set for a big show playing up the cultural and entertainment attractions of San Diego.

The first program in this series, saluting Fresno, went on the air last Monday night. San Diego is the second city and county to be honored on the new broadcasts.

By no means an amateur hour, this program will feature the best professional and amateur talent of San Diego county chosen in a long series of auditions at the Exposition, and the local artists will go on the air after two days of rehearsing with Conrad Nagel, Jane Froman and other movie stars. Their acts will be framed in an elaborate production setting against the background of David Broekman's orchestra, over the California Don Lee Broadcasting System and KGB Monday night, April 20th, from 9 to 10 p. m.

POULTRY DAIRY DRIVE TO AID FARMER-CONSUMERS

Dairymen and poultry producers, as well as consumers, will reap the benefits of the next intensive week-long Farmer Consumer sales campaign to be launched by Safeway & Mac Marr Stores April 17. The sale will extend from April 17 to 25, inclusive, and has been planned to stimulate consumption of milk, butter, eggs, and cheese, according to C. E. Froke, Safeway district manager at Ocean Beach.

These Farmer-Consumer drives on selected food products were inaugurated by Safeway Mac Marr for the double purpose of aiding both the producer and consumer, said Mr. Froke, and have been vitally helpful in relieving congested markets

"In selecting dairy and poultry products for the forthcoming sale, Safeway Mac Marr recognized that dairymen and poultry raisers represent a tremendous proportion of rural America," Mr. Froke stated. "Their operations are of great importance in practically every state of the Union; furthermore, their products contain essential food requirements without a proper percentage of which public health would suffer. This is especially true in the case of children."

In a similar campaign staged by Safeway Mac Marr last year, cheese was not included, but it is to be bracketed with milk, butter and eggs this year because it is a logically related item.

"Safeway's Homemakers' Bureau, Oakland, will cooperate with the forthcoming sales event by mailing to housewives upon receipt of a stamped-self-addressed envelope, special tested recipes calling for the use of milk, butter, eggs and cheese.
